

MEDIA ADVISORY

Port Authority continues to provide bus and T service this afternoon although snowy roads and slow travel has caused widespread delays throughout the day.

Riders should anticipate delays through the afternoon rush hour.

Service is being provided on more than 100 bus routes and on the T light rail system. A complete list of routes, along with any detours or service limitations, is posted at portauthority.org.

The T continues to provide service to the First Avenue Station in Downtown. A power issue in the Downtown subway prevents T service into the Steel Plaza and Wood Street stations. Bus shuttles have been serving temporary stops outside the stations.

Other service issues:

- The Authority continues to clear Park and Ride lots. Several were not accessible this morning due to snow.
- The Mon Incline was in service today.
- The 52 Allentown light rail line is not in service.
- The Wabash HOV lanes were shut down today.

Another 60 bus routes remain out of service due to weather-related issues across the county.

The Port Authority will continue to monitor efforts by public works crews to clear roads and as more routes become available, we will update portauthority.org, our Twitter site (twitter.com/pghtransit) and local media.
